

Communication Policy

Last Approved:	NOAMA Board	May 11, 2021
----------------	-------------	--------------

Communications are central to NOAMA's purpose and contribute directly to the PCTA members' trust in the NOAMA governance. NOAMA communicates policies, initiatives and other important information. NOAMA communicates with PCTA members to help protect their academic interests and promote scholarly activity across Northern Ontario.

How NOAMA delivers its communications affects the value of the information, how our members receive it, and its source's credibility. NOAMA supports other academic groups; however, our communications will not serve as a conduit of these groups. NOAMA recommends that other academic groups consider distributing academic and scholarly communications through the NOAMA LEG Lead & Administrator's contact list.

The communications function is integral to developing, implementing and evaluating NOAMA's policies and initiatives. Communications administration is a shared responsibility that requires the collaboration, support, and cooperation of various personnel throughout our membership and administrative team.
